DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 14,15,16,17,18,19 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(n) as being anticipated by Suzuki et al. (JP 09149576).

Suzuki et al. disclose a rotating machine coated with a polyester film (Figs.1,3 and 4). A polyester film 5 comprises a porous having a pore volume ratio not less than 10 vol%. With the constitution, an insulating film which excels in electrical characteristics and a molding work property is obtained. Table 1 contains the pore volume ratio and specific dielectric constant. The average pore size bellows 10 $\mu$ m and dielectric constant is 2.5 or lower. Fig.4 presents the laminated layers with two different materials 5 and 8.

3. Claims 14,16,17 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sugimoto et al. (JP 10159730).

Sugimoto et al. disclose a compressing device. Referring to Figs.1 and 3, Nonporous synthetic resin films (b) are laminated on both surfaces of a porous synthetic resin film or sheet (a) with foaming adhesive layer (c). For example, a composite of the porous synthetic resin film or sheet made of any one of polyethylene terephthalate, polyethylene naphthalate, polyphenylene sulfide, fused anisotropic aromatic polyester and polyimide, and the nonporous synthetic resin film made of any one of polyethylene naphthalate, polyphenylene sulfide and fused anisotropic aromatic polyester is used as an insulating material. The specific dielectric constant is 2.0 and lower.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suzuki et al. (JP 09149576) in view of Suzuki et al. (JP 09100363).

Suzuki '576 discloses the invention substantially as claimed. However, Suzuki '576 does not disclose fluorocarbon resin. Suzuki '363 discloses fluorocarbon resin in the same field of endeavor for the purpose of coating material. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the apparatus of Suzuki '576 with a fluorocarbon resin in view of Suzuki '363 so as to make insulating layer. Also, the applicant should note that the selection of known material based upon its suitability for the intended use is a design consideration within the skill of the art. In re Leshin, 227 F.2d 197, 125 USPQ 416 (CCPA 1960).

Double Patenting

6. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Art Unit: 3744

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

7. Claims 14-21 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1,6,7,8,9,10,11 and 12 of U.S. Patent No. 6,598,421. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both claim low dielectric constant plastic film forming an insulation part of a rotator.
